Guidance

Black line going up = Gold able to buy more silver

Black line going down = Gold able to buy less Silver

Gold Line going up = Gold able to buy more Platinum

Gold line going down = Gold able to buy less Platinum

Guidance

Current ratio = 85.55

The bars show how many sessions the Gold/Silver ratio has spent in each of the ranges over the past 550 session

We can see that most of the time the Gold Silver ratio trades in a range of 61 to 90 ounces of Silver for each ounce of Gold

The market can reach valuations in which Gold is worth 100+ ounces of Silver but as the graph shows, the ratio does not stay at these valuations for long

A ratio of 100+ ounces of Silver for 1 Gold ounce is a good time to swap Gold for Silver

2 Year Gold/Oil Ratio Distribution

Commodity Analysis

A volatile week which saw global stock markets sell-off on news that US consumer price inflation was hotter than expected, showing that price increases has not peaked and that real interest rates were continuing to fall. US consumer price index increased 1.0% last month after gaining 0.3% in April which was higher than the 0.7% consensus. Two-year U.S. Treasury yields rose to their highest level in three-and-a-half years and a part of the yield curve reinverted following the announcement. The Bank of England and Sweden's Riksbank are expected to hike rates again this week, while the European Central Bank on Thursday said it would deliver its first rate rise since 2011 next month, followed by a potentially larger move in September. The central bank elected to maintain the current expansionary monetary policy despite runaway consumer prices because some of the peripheral highly geared European nations are very exposed to higher interest rates which could immediately put the European trading block in a prolonged recession with limited interventions left for the European Central Bank
