Guidance

Black line going up = Gold able to buy more silver

Black line going down = Gold able to buy less Silver

Gold Line going up = Gold able to buy more Platinum

Gold line going down = Gold able to buy less Platinum

Guidance

Current ratio = 84.96

The bars show how many sessions the Gold/Silver ratio has spent in each of the ranges over the past 550 session

We can see that most of the time the Gold Silver ratio trades in a range of 61 to 90 ounces of Silver for each ounce of Gold

The market can reach valuations in which Gold is worth 100+ ounces of Silver but as the graph shows, the ratio does not stay at these valuations for long

A ratio of 100+ ounces of Silver for 1 Gold ounce is a good time to swap Gold for Silver

Commodity Analysis

A week of resilience for the precious metals when the level of activism of Central Banks is considered. The Federal Reserve announced its largest rate increase since 1994 while the Swiss National Bank unexpectedly raised its policy rate for the first time in fifteen years. The Swiss National Bank raised from -0.75% to -0.25% which sent the safe-haven franc higher. The Bank indicated that it is prepared to act again following Swiss inflation reaching a fourteen-year high. The Bank of England raised their base rate by a further quarter of a percentage point on Thursday and stated they are ready to act 'forcefully' to stomp dangers posed by runaway consumer price inflation which they forecast to head above 11% this Autumn. Sterling has been one of the weakest G10 currencies over the week, behind the Japanese Yen which has been hammered off the back of Japan's Central Bank's yield control. The government announced a plan with the Bank of Japan to intervene in the currency markets to save the Yen, which will necessitate selling foreign currency. Japan is the largest holder of US Treasuries
